Assault call at mayor's home cut off sting

Revelations continue. Police forced to call off an operation targeting Ford friend Sandro Lisi

A "domestic-assault" call to Mayor Rob Ford's house in August disrupted a nearby police sting involving alleged drug dealer and Ford friend Alessandro Lisi, court documents released by a judge reveal.

The trouble at the Ford house prompted Lisi to make a rapid flurry of calls to Ford and city hall staffer Dave Price, and apparently stopped him from driving into the sting.

The domestic call also sent uniformed officers to Ford's house and caused the undercover detectives to break off surveillance that August evening.

After the domestic-assault call, Ford left his home and checked in to the Grand Hotel on Jarvis Street for three nights. Lisi also paid a visit to the hotel on the first night, according to police documents.

The late August call to investigate an allegation of domestic assault at Ford's house is one of many contacts — more than two dozen — that uniformed officers have had with members of the Ford family over the past eight years.

According to an emergency official with knowledge of the incident, in 2012 officers arrived to find Ford outside his house in the early morning hours yelling into his phone.

Meanwhile, a stretch limousine idled on the road, and its driver and a scantily clad woman stood in Ford's driveway, arguing. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Criminal charges

Ford was charged in 2008 with assaulting and threatening to kill his wife.

- The charges were withdrawn by a Crown attorney, who cited "inconsistencies" in his wife's statements.
- Ford has not been charged in connection with any of the other police interactions.

Ford cracks wise for the crowd

Mayor Rob Ford, seen here with one of the many fans who wanted to speak with him, joked about how city council has reduced his budget and powers during a speech to a business audience Thursday at Casa Loma. Ford said he'd reduced council and the mayor's budget by $6.4 million over four years, and "even more in the last three days" — a reference to council stripping him of much of his budget this week. During the speech, Ford touted Toronto as the "top place for business investment and innovation."

Ombudsman digs deeper into red tape

City hall. Fiona Crean says half the complaints her office receives concern excessive bureaucratic hurdles

Toronto ombudsman Fiona Crean is mounting a battle against red tape at city hall.

Crean announced on Thursday that she is launching an investigation into red tape, which "can be a significant barrier to the fair and equitable treatment that the citizens deserve."

"Many people may think that red tape is a nuisance," she told a news conference at city hall. "This couldn't be further from the truth. Such thinking minimizes the real-life experiences that residents face."

It is rare for the city's ombudsman to announce the start of an investigation. Usually, the office responds to complaints. But Crean said she wants residents to share their experiences with red tape with her office online, at ombudstoronto.ca. All responses will remain confidential.

"I'm not talking about the dismantling of the rules and procedures that are necessary for the running of good government," Crean said. "What I'm talking about are the needless duplication or overtly complex procedures, rules or processes that provide no benefit to the public."

For example, she said the forms required for Toronto Community Housing residents to move to a different unit are so complicated "that staff tell them to take it to the legal clinic in order to get it properly filled out."

Meanwhile, business licences are issued only at one office in the city's east end, and are not available online.

"You may have to shut down your small business in order to go and apply and wait in line. Then you have to return with your criminal-background check and queue again," she said. "Why is it relevant or necessary, in some instances, to have a criminal check at all?"

Crean expects to wrap up her investigation by next spring. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Young boy killed by car identified

A four-year-old boy who was struck and killed by a car Wednesday morning while walking to school in Mississauga has been identified by neighbours as Millhad Shir Ahmad.

The Peel District School Board didn't confirm the boy's name, citing privacy concerns, but said he was a kindergarten student at Artesian Drive Public School, about two blocks from where the collision occurred. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Toronto sailor coping with mast break in elite race

Europe to the Caribbean. Diane Reid first Canadian woman in elite Mini Transat race

A week into her attempt to race a 21-foot sailboat solo across the Atlantic Ocean, Toronto's Diane Reid suffered a major setback: Her mast broke, about 500 kilometres northeast of the Canary Islands.

Does that mean it's the end of Reid's journey as the first Canadian woman to take part in the elite Mini Transat race?

Her campaign chairman, Roger Van Vlack, laughs at the question.

"You'll have a hard time keeping her down," he said.

For now, nobody but Reid knows for certain what her plans are or how badly her Mini 650 sailboat is damaged, because competitors aren't allowed to contact the outside world while at sea. The point of the Mini Transat is to sail from Europe to the Caribbean with little more than the basics: No advanced navigation systems or weather forecasts, no computers, no satellite phones, just a VHF radio and some old-fashioned charts.

Diane Reid. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

"This is truly one of the most challenging yacht races in the world," said race spokeswoman Fiona Brown. "It's totally about you and your boat against the elements."

Reid was able to radio a passing cargo ship and relay a message to the race committee, letting them know she was safe and she did not need assistance. She managed to jury-rig her mast and is sailing into Lanzarote in the Canary Islands.

Her husband, Paul Reid, said that makes him think the mast is damaged but not destroyed. He guesses she plans to keep going after some repairs, because if she called for assistance, she would have had to quit the race. "Knowing Diane, she's going to do her best to get to land ... and she'll do what she can to try and fix it and get back out there," he said.

A PEEK INTO ROB FORD'S FUTURE

CERISE FAIRFAX
toronto@metronews.ca

Born May 28, 1969 makes Mayor Rob Ford a Gemini. As a Gemini, Ford will experience change throughout the rest of 2013.

The Age of Aquarius will make a stronger impact on his career life, and he will be left contemplating newer aspirations in 2014. With one month left in 2013, Ford will manage to make a stir once again. Just a stir, because his glass is only half-empty. Nevertheless, like a weeble wobble, Ford will not fall down, and 2013 will end, being one of his most memorable years.

The numbers of his birth add up to four.

Month (5) + date (2+8) + year (1+9+6+9) = 40. The rule in numerology is that the number must be brought to a single digit, so 4+0=4.

As it goes for most fours, Ford will also be seeking security in the last bit of 2013 and throughout 2014. His main focus will be to secure his job as mayor.

There is an old saying: "Enjoy the juice from the orange and squeeze 'til it's gone." Ford will be doing that in 2014. It is a likely possibility that some voters may want to re-elect the mayor. Nevertheless, it is a higher probability that he will be left sipping his last drop of orange juice — still mixing it with a little bit of ... pride.

Due to his numerological number four, mixing with the seven (from adding the digits of 2014), the universal powers that be will have Ford unite with many of his plans for the future. He will jump from mayor to "businessman."

Different opportunities will appeal to him; public speaking, a newspaper column, a radio show, and real-estate ventures, to name a few. So it would be smart of him to listen to his gut when it tells him to turn down the "off the paper" opportunities.

If he doesn't listen to his intuition, then he will have to listen to a lawyer, and he will be exposed in the news again.

During 2014, he will publish a personal book. If he wants to make money from his book, he will need to write a tell-all, detailing his "dirty secrets" and all.

Since he only admits what he needs to, it is safe to say his book will bomb like his television show did.

Mayor Rob Ford will "enjoy the juice from the orange and squeeze 'til it's gone" in 2014. BERNARD WEIL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Continental leader. Wynne set to ban coal-fired plants

Ontario could soon become the first place in North America to snuff out coal-fired electricity generation for good, Premier Kathleen Wynne said Thursday.

The minority Liberals plan to introduce legislation on Monday that, if passed, would ensure no Ontario generating station ever burns coal again once it's eliminated in 2014.

Ontario's Nanticoke generating station — the largest coal-burning plant in North America — is slated to close soon. Another station in Thunder Bay, Ont., is expected to switch to biomass over the next year.

With environmentalist and former U.S. vice-president Al Gore by her side, Wynne said the proposed ban isn't just a symbolic move in Ontario's fight against climate change.

"What's significant is that we're saying that we don't want to go back, we're not going to go back and that future government would have to change the legislation," she said.

Future generations will thank Ontario for leading the way in banning coal-fired generation, said Gore.

Quoted

"We believe that this puts a very clear line in the sand and is significant."
Premier Kathleen Wynne

"Mother Nature is proclaiming the urgency of this crisis in ever more easily understandable tones," he said.

Natural disasters like the devastating typhoon in the Philippines are frightening signs of what's to come if governments don't take action to curb climate change, he said.

It was like the country was hit by a combination of the largest tornado ever seen and a tsunami, he said, much like the B movie Sharknado.

"What I'm trying to punch through is the wall of denial and resistance to seeing how dramatically the reality has changed in our world."

The minority Liberals still need the support of at least one of the opposition parties for the legislation to pass.

TTC BUDGET APPROVED, BUT MORE STILL NEEDED FOR PUBLIC TRANSIT

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

On Wednesday, the TTC Board approved the 2014 operating and Wheel-Trans budgets, and the 2014-2023 (10-year) capital budget. The subsidy request for the operating budget, as well as the capital budget request, must now be ratified at City Council in January.

These budgets are critically important for a number of reasons:

• They enable the TTC to expand service to keep pace with ever-rising customer numbers, predicted to reach an all-time record high of 540 million rides by the end of 2014.

• The operating budget also sees a break in the two-year freeze on the subsidy received from the City each year. That, in part, will allow us to continue to deliver increased customer essentials and satisfaction via our Five-Year Corporate Plan.

• Finally, vital capital funds have been secured for 2014 to allow us to maintain the system in a state of good repair.

My aim at the start of this budget round was threefold:

1. To make a compelling case to the City for increased TTC subsidy.

2. To limit any fare increase to the rate of inflation.

3. To highlight the need for $9 billion over the next 10 years to address critical infrastructure improvements and the purchase of more vehicles to address ever-growing demand.

These aims were largely achieved. Against a very tight financial backdrop, the City has agreed to an additional $27-million operating subsidy to meet part of the cost of providing more service, and more vehicles with greater capacity. The fare increase has been limited to five cents, plus an increase to the trip rate of the adult Metropass to close the gap between our costs and revenue. Even then, we will need to find further savings throughout the year.

HARVEY SHOP OPEN HOUSE TO BENEFIT THE UNITED WAY

The TTC is holding an open house at its historic Harvey Shop facility on Saturday, Nov. 23 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. All proceeds from the open house will go to the United Way.

Located at the TTC's Hillcrest Complex, 1138 Bathurst St., Harvey Shop is the major maintenance facility for the streetcar fleet and component manufacturer for subway cars and buses.

Visitors can climb aboard the vintage PCC and Peter Witt streetcars, as well as the new low-floor accessible streetcar, the new 60-foot accessible articulated bus and the TTC Command bus used for emergencies. Volunteers will be on hand to provide a guided tour.

Admission is $5 for adults and $2 for children.

WHEEL-TRANS PUBLIC CONSULTATION MEETING

The TTC is committed to a transparent process to determine eligibility for Wheel-Trans. Last July, the City of Toronto Ombudsman reported on her investigation into the TTC's use of video-recordings on Wheel-Trans vehicles for purposes of re-assessing customers' eligibility.

The Ombudsman recommended that the TTC engage in a public consultation if it wished to continue using video-recordings as a component of eligibility assessments as was approved by the Information and Privacy Commissioner of Ontario. The TTC is responding to that recommendation.

Date: Tues., Nov. 26, 7:30 to 9 p.m.
Location: Memorial Hall, North York Centre, 5110 Yonge St. (lower level below the North York Civic Centre Library).

The location is accessible. Accessible public transit options include taking the subway and exiting at North York Centre Station or taking the 97C Yonge bus.

Three gunshots ripped through the clear blue skies over Dallas at 12:30 p.m. on Nov. 22, 1963. Six seconds later, the 35th American president slumped over in the back seat of his convertible limo.

Jackie Kennedy cradled her lifeless husband, her brown eyes black with terror, as thick red blood oozed from his splattered skull, soiling her perfect pink Chanel suit.

"They have killed my husband … I have his brains in my hand," she cried. The whole world wept with Jackie.

Fifty years to the day, the assassination of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, a self-described "idealist without illusions," still haunts us, like a dream that never rings true.

The age of JFK was a singular moment in time. From the Bay of Pigs, the Cuban missile crisis and the space race, to the rising African-American civil rights movement, the building of the Berlin Wall and early stages of the war in Vietnam, planet Earth was on the brink of Armageddon.

JFK was the counterpoint to this cataclysmic prophecy. His speeches were like sermons. He preached for peace, lobbied for a ban on nuclear testing, and made human rights a central part of his platform. Like no one else before him, JFK defined the yearning of a disillusioned generation.

With his untimely death, there was faith no more.

The JFK assassination is a stitch in time the Cowboy Junkies' Michael Timmins, a self-confessed "history buff," knows all too well. Much of it was learned while he was recording the Junkies latest offering, The Kennedy Suite, a superlative 15-track compilation that tells the story of the JFK assassination through the first-person experiences of the characters in each song.

"The thing that is so striking about that era is that, at that time in history, there was truly a loss of innocence. Which sounds weird for a country that had gone through two world wars, but there was this real surge of hope that Kennedy brought … there was a real sense of 'We are going to change the world.' That was literally snuffed out in a second with the death of Kennedy," he said in an interview.

"Those three assassinations — Kennedy, his brother Bobby and Martin Luther King — in the space of a few years, changed the way we viewed politics, the way we viewed hope.

"The trauma of that event was so huge, it echoed for years and maybe still does, right around the world. There were people just absolutely destroyed by this."

That eerie sense of desolation over the loss of JFK comes to the fore in a number of vignettes that make up The Kennedy Suite package, most notably the Junkies' Margo Timmins on Disintegrating, but the record is also pumped with the incensed virility of When Will I Be Mine (Ruby Ruby), performed by The Good Family, and the bouncing beats of The Truth About Us (The Ballad of Lee and Marina), courtesy of the Skydiggers.

The suite also includes some stellar performances by the likes of Sarah Harmer, Jason Collett, Harlan Pepper and Hawksley Workman, to name a few.

Producer Timmins is first to admit that the challenge of putting together a collaborative record with so many compelling talents was a task like no other.

"We wanted every song to have a distinct voice, and also a distinct voice as far as a singer was concerned," he explains.

"We wanted to pair songs with a character, that was priority No.1. We did not want it to be a Junkies album, but the collaborative thing that it became.

"We got stalled for a while, the Junkies were working on the Nomad project and touring extensively. There was no real drive to get it done. It kind of stumbled along for a while."

Indeed. Work on the project began back in 2007, when Timmins joined forces with Scott Garbe, the mastermind behind the compositions on the suite. A drama teacher in King City by day, Garbe spent years developing the songs that would satiate his fixation with JFK's assassination.

Timmins says he was immediately taken with Garbe's compositions.

"They are really special. There's a real intelligence to each piece and I love the whole concept and the narrative arc to the songs."

To mark the 50th anniversary of JFK's death, there are untold commemorations, publications and tributes planned. Libraries are displaying artifacts and collections of Kennedy-related memorabilia. When the 100th anniversary comes around, expect to see The Kennedy Suite heralded as the musical ode to this historic moment.

Michael Timmins of the Cowboy Junkies

Only one Cowboy Junkies song:

Disintegration, the only song on the record performed by the Junkies, comes with the familiar voice of Margo Timmins, in the role of Jacqueline Kennedy.

- "Immediately I thought of Margo for that song," says brother Michael. "It is such a heartbreaking song, I knew she could bring the right sense of forlornness and strength to that song, that is sung from Jackie's point of view, as well as being a real centrepiece for the album, the centrepiece of the narrative.
- We also wanted to make keep the best piece of 'meet,' to ourselves," he laughed.

Timmins on conspiracy theories

The Warren Commission investigated the JFK assassination in 1964, concluding that the 24-year-old Oswald was the lone shooter. Many observers still doubt all or portions of the official story.

A recent poll shows 59 per cent of Americans believe the assassination was part of a wider conspiracy, another 24 per cent believe Oswald acted alone.

"How can one small, insignificant man like Lee Harvey Oswald change the course of history? I think that is why there are so many conspiracy theories, it keeps going back to that point," says Timmins.

"Thousands of books have been written about it and there are tons of theories … I think ultimately there are times in history when weird fates collide and small things add up to create huge, calamitous events.

"There is no doubt that he (Oswald) did it … To be able to pull something like that off as a conspiracy, to me is preposterous. There would have to be so many people involved if it was a conspiracy, and a large group of people is just too inefficient at guarding a secret, something would have leaked out."

Events to mark JFK's death

Half a century later. 35th U.S. president fatally shot in Dallas on Friday, Nov. 22, 1963

The 50th anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy will be marked by solemn events in multiple U.S. cities on Friday.

In Dallas, where Kennedy was shot while riding through the city on Nov. 22, 1963, a ceremony will include brief remarks by the mayor and the tolling of church bells.

In Boston, the JFK Library and Museum will open an exhibit of never-before-displayed items from Kennedy's state funeral and host a musical tribute that will be closed to the public.

And in Washington, President Barack Obama will meet privately at the White House with leaders and volunteers from the Kennedy-established Peace Corps program.

About 5,000 tickets were issued for the ceremony in Dallas' Dealey Plaza, which is flanked by the Texas School Book Depository building where sniper Lee Harvey Oswald was perched in 1963.

Other events include a ceremony at Parkland Memorial Hospital, where Kennedy was declared dead, to lower the U.S. flag to half-staff.

Many medical pot users feeling outed by Health Canada

Panic mode. Mass mailing identifying recipients as pot smokers has some patients upset

TREVOR GREENWAY
Metro in Ottawa

Tens of thousands of medical marijuana patients across the country are receiving a mass mailing from Health Canada exposing them as medicinal cannabis users, and many are now in panic mode.

The letter, which Health Canada says was sent to 40,000 people, comes in a white envelope, and has a return address with the words "Marihuana Medical Access Program" written across the top, followed by the patient's name and address. Many say their privacy has been violated and fear their houses may be robbed and their home growing gardens targeted.

"I'm outright panicked," said Multiple Sclerosis patient Suzi Berardini, who also suffers from trigeminal neuralgia. She said the mailman who dropped the letter off "smirked" when he handed her the envelope. "It's terrifying. So many levels of terrifying."

Laurie MacEachern, who represents medical marijuana patients as director of the Medicinal Cannabis Patients' Alliance of Canada Inc., said she is "supremely" concerned about the information being released to the public.

"One patient said she got her mail and the delivery man said, 'I didn't know you smoked,'" said MacEachern.

MacEachern said previous letters did not have the word "marijuana" on it.

Almost a dozen other medical marijuana patients called Metro with similar concerns. Most weren't willing to comment on the record for fear of being exposed even further.

Health Canada Deputy Minister George Da Pont said the format of the mailing was the result of an "administrative error." He said the letters outlining changes to the Marihuana Medical Access Program, which take effect next spring, were sent to 40,000 patients.

"This is not standard Health Canada practice," he wrote in an email to Metro.

"On behalf of Health Canada, I deeply regret this administrative error. Health Canada is taking steps to ensure this does not happen again. Protection of personal information is of fundamental importance to Health Canada. We are in discussion with the Office of the Privacy Commissioner of Canada."

Senators rattled by RCMP tale of PMO meddling

Rattled Conservative and Liberal senators say they're trying to come to terms with the RCMP's description of meddling by the Prime Minister's Office in the upper chamber's business.

The 80-page court filing by the Mounties became required reading around the Senate this week. Emails back and forth suggest Stephen Harper's staff and his top senators helped to manipulate a Senate committee and its report into former colleague Mike Duffy's contested living expenses. The group also tried to quash an independent audit commissioned by the Senate.

"I am a strong believer in the independence of the institution and I think it's something we're all going to have to reflect upon in terms of going forward and how that relationship (with elected officials) should be structured," Conservative Sen. Bob Runciman said Thursday.

Liberal senators are also reading the documents with interest, and considering if anything should be done on the floor of the Senate.

"I've read the documents. I find parts of them very disturbing indeed, but beyond that I don't really want to comment," said deputy Liberal Senate leader Joan Fraser.

"It's going to take a little while to work through all of this and figure out what the ultimate implications are."

Cyprus university takes e-cash for tuition payments

Foreign students wanted. Move targets people pursuing online degrees from abroad

The university claims it's the first in the world to take tuition payments in Bitcoin. RICK BOWMER/AP

Cyprus' biggest private university said Thursday it will start accepting the digital currency Bitcoin as an alternative way to pay tuition fees.

The country had been a hub for international banking before suffering a collapse in its financial system this year, leading the government to impose controls on the flow of capital as it accepted an international bailout.

But the University of Nicosia said the move to accept Bitcoin was unrelated to the controls. Rather, it was meant to help foreign students in countries where traditional banking transactions are either difficult or costly to pay for programs such as online degrees.

The university's chief financial officer, Christos Vlachos, said the institution, which has about 8,500 students enrolled, is the first in the world to take Bitcoin payments.

Bitcoin is a cryptography-based digital currency that advocates say is counterfeit-proof. Its value is determined by supply — which is limited by its design — and demand. Among various criticisms levelled at Bitcoin, is that it is too prone to price swings against other currencies.

Vlachos said payments are free of risk for the university since it immediately converts the digital currency to euros at the day's exchange rate. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fun and games are serious business

Orlando. Bounce houses, giant animatronic bugs, zip lines and roller coaster wheels all on offer at trade show

Have you ever wondered where your fun comes from?

The answer: Here, at the International Association of Amusement Parks & Attractions expo.

The five-day trade show took place this week in Orlando, smack in the middle of the world's biggest theme-park corridor. It's the largest such convention in the world, and people from more than 100 countries either attend or exhibit at the mind-bogglingly massive show.

If one were to walk the entire show floor, it would tally 15 kilometres.

Here, leisure is serious business. There's everything that a theme park, entertainment centre, zoo or museum could want at this show.

Montreal-based company Triotech had one of the largest spaces at the expo. They are developing an interactive, dark roller coaster for Cedar Fair Entertainment Company's Toronto park.

"We met them on the floor a couple of years ago," said Matt Ouimet, CEO of Cedar Fair. Triotech's coaster is scheduled to open at Canada's Wonderland in May 2014. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pennsylvania

3,2,1 ... giant mushroom!

A town near Philadelphia that's famous for fungus will ring in 2014 with a giant mushroom.

The 318-kilogram, stainless-steel toadstool will be lowered from a crane Dec. 31 as residents of Kennett Square count down to the New Year.

The Philadelphia Inquirer reports the sculpture will be more than two metres wide and 2.5 metres tall.

Kennett Square calls itself the mushroom capital of the world because area farms account for about half of U.S. mushroom production.

The mushroom joins a slew of quirky New Year's Eve traditions in Pennsylvania.

In Bethlehem, residents celebrate Jan. 1 by lowering an 38-kg statue of a Marshmallow Peep, since the treats are made locally.

In Easton, officials drop a three-metre-tall lighted crayon because the city is home to Crayola Inc. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Crowdfunding. Young entrepreneur's smart watch raises over $200K

A 19-year-old entrepreneur from Montreal is taking on tech juggernauts Samsung and Sony by trying to launch his own smart watch.

Like many startup companies, Neptune Computer Inc. has turned to an online crowdfunding platform to raise funding for a full launch of its product.

Simon Tian's vision for a better smart watch quickly won over the community at Kickstarter. Tian hit his target of $100,000 in just over 24 hours and passed $200,000 Thursday afternoon with 30 more days to raise additional funds.

He had the idea for his smart watch, called the Neptune Pine, last year and visited factories in China to investigate what he could have built.

The first thing that stands out about the Neptune Pine is its 2.4-inch screen, which he admits looks large on a wrist.

"Obviously the initial reaction will be 'Oh, it's big for a watch!' but we think a paradigm shift is going to be required in the future," said Tian. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Women freed from 30 years of captivity

Two suspects arrested, three victims rescued.
London police say domestic slavery possible motivation

Three women have been freed after spending 30 years held captive in a home in south London, England, including one woman believed to have spent her entire life in domestic slavery, police announced Thursday.

London's Metropolitan Police spoke about the rescues after two people — a man and a woman, both 67 — were arrested early Thursday on suspicion of forced labour and domestic servitude.

The arrests were part of a slavery investigation launched after one of the captives contacted a charity in October.

Kevin Hyland, of the Metropolitan Police's human trafficking unit, speaks to the media Thursday.

Those freed on Oct. 25 are a 69-year-old Malaysian woman, a 57-year-old Irish woman and a 30-year-old British woman, police said.

Police would not speculate on any possible motivation, name the suspects' nationalities or say if any of the suspects were a couple.

The revelations raised numerous questions — all still unanswered — about the women's ordeal.

The women — whose names have not been released — are now safe at an undisclosed location in Britain and have been working with severe trauma experts since their rescue, said Kevin Hyland, head of the Metropolitan Police's human trafficking unit.

Hyland said while the women had some "controlled freedom," police were still working to establish what sort of conditions they lived under for the past 30 years.

He said his unit, which deals with many cases of servitude and forced labour, had seen previous cases of people held for up to 10 years.

"But we've never seen anything of this magnitude before," he said.

Supreme Court to hear Quebec gun-registry appeal

Court stands by Berlusconi's sex conviction

Italian court. Former PM's conviction, seven year sentence and lifetime political ban explained; proof of intercourse not needed

The Milan court that convicted Silvio Berlusconi of paying an underage prostitute for sex at his infamous Bunga Bunga parties said Thursday that proof of intercourse wasn't necessary to find him guilty.

The court, in a 326-page document supporting the June 24 conviction, seven-year jail sentence and lifetime political ban, said all it needed was evidence that the former premier's "sexual instincts" were stimulated in exchange for payment.

The court noted that the Moroccan teen at the centre of the scandal, Karima el-Mahroug, better known as Ruby, received $3,000 cash every time she attended a party, plus jewellery and a lump sum of 57,000 euros.

London's Tube

24-hour service soon on some weekend routes

London's subway system is planning to introduce 24-hour service on the weekends on some lines under new plans that will involve closing all ticket offices and cutting 750 jobs by 2015.

Transport for London — which operates the London Underground, known locally as the Tube — also promised contactless bank-card payment technology and extended Wi-Fi coverage at stations.

The transport authority said staff will be taken out of ticket offices and based in other places.

That would lead to 750 job losses out of a staff of 18,000. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greenpeace. Second Canadian granted bail in Russia; but pair not free yet

The two Canadians who were among 30 people arrested in Russia following a Greenpeace protest in the Arctic now have been granted bail.

Greenpeace spokesman Diego Creimer said Thursday that Alexandre Paul of Montreal had won bail, but said that both he and Paul Ruzycki of Port Colborne, Ont., who was granted bail Tuesday, have not yet been released.

Paul's mother, Nicole Paul, released a statement through Greenpeace on Thursday welcoming the news he had been granted bail. "I'm so happy that my son is going to be out of jail soon ... I'm so proud of him and everything he stands for," said Paul.

Where the jobs are

Record number of Canadians move to Alberta for work

The number of Canadian workers migrating between provinces in search of jobs has hit its highest level in almost 25 years, according to a Bank of Montreal analysis.

Most are heading to Alberta and Saskatchewan, and leaving from British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec and Atlantic Canada, the study shows.

The movement belies industry and federal government complaints about the lack of flexibility in the labour market.

The Harper government and industry has for years complained about labour shortages in specific regions and skills, with Ottawa introducing several measures, including tighter unemployment insurance rules, in an effort to force the jobless to go further afield.

But the BMO analysis suggests a near-record number of Canadians are already ready to pull up stakes to move to where the jobs are.

Inward migration to Alberta for instance has surged to more than 50,000 people during the past year, the highest on record, and representing 1.3 per cent of the province's population.

"Search for the white rabbit," Kano challenges me, providing clues as to where the animal might be. Mere minutes ago, the sleek, orange-fringed computer was a collection of flat-packed components in a box, but with minimal fuss it has been brought to life, taught to recognize its owner, and now it wants to play.

Built around the Raspberry Pi — a no-frills computer on a single circuit board — the Kano promises to make us all creative technologists. It is the product of a London computing startup of the same name, and a challenge from company founder Alex Klein's cousin Micah, aged 7, who wanted computer design to be 'like Lego.' The final product can be pieced together in 107 seconds, costs $99, and has generated enough excitement to crowd-fund almost triple the original target of $100,000 within 48 hours, with funders including Apple co-founder Steve Wozniak, a.k.a. the Woz.

"There has been a tension between the specialists and users," says Kano coder Matt Keegan, playing a simple game he has just built on the device. "We want to lower the barrier to entry and empower children."

The machine can serve many functions of a regular laptop — web browsing, correspondence — but the main appeal lies in teaching non-experts how computers work 'under the hood.'

LG smart TV collecting your viewing habits?

Privacy. A British IT consultant says the world's second-largest TV maker is sending data back to the company without consent

LG Electronics Inc. said it is investigating a claim that some of its smart TVs send information on home viewing habits back to the company without consent.

The investigation comes after Jason Huntley, a 45-year-old IT consultant in Britain, detailed in his blog how his LG smart TV logged the channels he was watching and sent the data to LG.

He said the company continued to collect which channel he was watching even after he disabled the information collection feature.

"The (LG) server acknowledges the successful receipt of this information back to the TV," he said in an email. The information appeared to be sent to LG unencrypted, he said.

Also collected were the names of files saved in an external USB hard drive plugged into the TV as well as the TV's unique identification information.

LG said Thursday that customer privacy is its top priority.

Huntley said the amount of attention his blog post has gotten "indicates that privacy issues are becoming increasingly important to people everywhere, as we are so dependent on technology in our everyday lives."

Temp Recalls the Zombie Walk

I think the AmQex protest got so much press because the zombies that the cops handcuffed and dragged away left behind a wicked trail of slime and body parts.

Andy Kimura, the firm's third partner, was looking at YouTube over my shoulder and said, "I must say, Shannon, bodily remains really look great online." Andy was still woozy from jetlag after being quarantined for bird flu at Beijing Airport.

"Mr. Kimura, shouldn't you be showing the Chinese folks around while they measure stuff?"

"Not me. I'm Japanese."

"Genetically maybe."

"But my name certainly is, and the Chinese aren't so hot on Japan."

I said, "Hey, check this out — Sarah from marketing got 15 seconds with the Channel 3 Roving Reporter." To be honest, I've no idea what Sarah said. All I remember is her trademarked casual hair flip as she smiled while behind her lay a left leg covered in red corn syrup and vinyl black flies.

"Poor Sarah," said Andy. "Today's her last day."

Oh God. "Seriously?"

"That's life, Shannon. As we speak our new Chinese owners are measuring the staff lunchroom with a laser level. We are not a company that is in need of a head of marketing."

"Oh Sarah, I barely knew ye. Does she know it yet?"

"After lunch."

"Life sucks."

It was weird having every single surface of the building measured by quiet, methodical people speaking a mystery language. What made it especially odd was how they didn't really seem to notice or interact with the people in the building. It was like they were taking measurements inside a photograph, not a real building. Two guys in the meeting room were assembling a 3D model of the building using data brought in by the measurers.

I found myself missing Mr. Shoeman terribly. I decided to phone him in Beijing, and seeing country code 86 on my desktop phone put me in a better mood. I hoped he hadn't forgotten our plans for the future.

"Hello, Mr. Xu?"

"Hi, hello, yes, whatever — whoever this is, I'm getting a reflexology right now and need to focus my qi energy."

"Mr. Shoeman, it's me, Shannon."

"Ah. Sweetest lily of decadent western imperialism."

The zombies that the cops handcuffed and dragged away left behind a wicked trail of slime and body parts.

"Shoeman, I miss you. When are you coming back?"

"Me so sorry — not understand."

I giggled: "You're still such a dick."

"Hang in there, sweetheart."

"What about our secret plan?"

"Our secret plan goes into operation within a few days."

"You promise?"

"I promise." I hung up the phone and turned around to find Andy Kimura and the two remaining Sarahs. "Secret plan?" said Andy. "So Dan wasn't just being paranoid."

"Imagine that," said Sarah No. 1 with as much righteousness as she could muster, "A traitor right here from within."

Andy said, "I think you'd better leave, Shannon."

SURVEY REVEALS EDUCATION NEEDED

SARCOMA KNOWN AS 'FORGOTTEN' CANCER

WAVEBREAKMEDIA/SHUTTERSTOCK

Earlier this year, the Sarcoma Cancer Foundation of Canada (SCFC), the national voice for sarcoma cancers, commissioned a survey to see what Canadians knew about the disease. The results showed some significant gaps.

According to the survey results, only one-third of Canadians know what sarcoma is and a quarter indicated that they have never heard of it. Further, only 17 per cent of Canadians correctly identified sarcoma as the disease that claimed the life of Canadian icon Terry Fox.

"Sarcoma is a cancer that attacks the connective tissues within the body, causing tumours in both adults and children," says Diana Arajs, who founded SCFC in 2010. "These results validate that there is a significant education gap about a disease that has a serious impact on Canadian lives."

The survey, conducted by Leger Marketing, found that 25 per cent of respondents had never heard of sarcoma cancer and only slightly more than one-third could correctly identify the disease.

Sarcomas can be found anywhere in the body and do not target one particular area — this means that a person can be diagnosed in an extremity (arms or legs), internally and even on the chest and back.

Some sarcomas are present in the stomach and small intestine and are referred to as gastrointestinal stromal tumours (GISTs). Diagnoses can be a challenge when dealing with sarcomas; for example, in early stage GISTs there are typically no symptoms present. They only arise when the tumour has grown large enough to cause problems.

A number of new treatments have recently become available for sarcoma patients in Canada, where previously there hadn't been many developments. In the last year, a new option for soft-tissue sarcoma was made available and, more recently, the approval of Stivarga, a treatment initially approved for patients with metastatic colon cancer, is now indicated for patients dealing with a GIST diagnosis — the tools available to physicians and patients are expanding.

SCFC has been active in fundraising to support leading research aimed at treating and eliminating sarcoma cancer. Medical oncologist Dr. Albiruni Razak of Mount Sinai Hospital and Princess Margaret Hospital in Toronto conducts research in the area of sarcomas and was the recipient of the inaugural SCFC clinical fellowship.

"Sarcoma cancer has been a neglected area of research, but the tide is turning and, with the support of SCFC, we are moving forward with exciting research here in Canada, which leverages recent advancements and discoveries around the world," Razak says.

In March 2013, SCFC renewed its support for Razak's work by providing funding for his clinical trial of a new targeted treatment for sarcoma cancer. The new daily treatment, taken orally, prevents blood vessels from "feeding" the tumour and inhibits cancer cell division and stunts the tumour's growth.

For more information on SCFC, please visit sarcomacancer.ca.

FOUNDATION CELEBRATING THIRD ANNIVERSARY

The Sarcoma Cancer Foundation of Canada (SCFC) was established in 2010 in memory of Vera Arajs and other Canadians who have lost their lives to sarcoma cancers.

The volunteer-run national organization supports patients and their families, while working with Canada's leading researchers in their efforts to eradicate sarcoma cancers.

It is the foundation's mission to act as a resource for patients and their families and to connect them to the best medical information and community resources available in Canada in order to help ease the process of dealing with a sarcoma cancer diagnosis and treatment. On Nov. 30, the organization will celebrate its third anniversary.

The foundation will also be launching an online community resource early next year aimed at allowing people experiencing sarcoma cancer to share information and support each other, while accessing the latest information on treatments, clinical trials and Canadian resources.

BETH ENGLAND: DON'T STOP BELIEVING

This fall, friends and family held a fundraiser for Beth England, 36, and it was nothing short of amazing, not unlike England herself.

The Windsor, Ont., wife and mom of two boys, Grant, 4, and William, 18 months, is battling a rare form of cancer called synovial sarcoma.

The journey started two years ago when she was pregnant and found a small lump on her foot. In her eighth month of pregnancy, the lump had grown quite large, and an MRI showed it was a tumour. The next day England had an emergency C-section and despite being three weeks early, eight-pound William was in good health.

CONTRIBUTED

A biopsy at Mt. Sinai Hospital in Toronto confirmed it was synovial sarcoma and, in June 2012, just six weeks after William was born, England's right leg was amputated from just below the knee.

"It sounds drastic, but we just wanted to remove the cancer from my body," England says.

She says it was better to go higher for the prosthetic function, and the team at Mt. Sinai, headed by Dr. Peter Ferguson, wanted to make sure the margins were clear of cancer.

By October, England was fitted and completely comfortable with a prosthetic.

"I'm young and strong, so I managed just fine."

When a follow-up CT scan showed metastatic tumours in her lungs, her oncologist, Dr. Martin Blackstein at Mt. Sinai, prescribed six months of in-hospital chemotherapy. By February, some of the tumours were eliminated and most of the others had shrunk.

"Only the chemo in the hospital slowed me down a bit, but otherwise I felt great the whole time. I was still having a full life and taking care of my kids."

England and her husband, Bill, took the kids to Florida last year.

"We keep everything moving as normal, especially with the kids," England says. "I think they really do keep life normal and grounded.

"Grant thought it was cool that mommy put on wigs and didn't have hair. With my foot, he says very cute things — he tells me I have to put on my shoe (I call it my shoe). 'Mommy has to have her shoe on to walk.'"

In September, the fundraiser in Windsor attracted thousands of participants who raised more than $200,000 for the Don't Stop Believing Beth Research Fund. The event was family friendly with teams running, walking and biking for sarcoma research, and included a barbecue, children's cupcake walk and musical bands, too.

In October, England had thoracic surgery at Toronto General Hospital to remove lesions from her lungs.

"I had an amazing recovery, it was really a non-invasive procedure," England says. "Now I'm back on daily medication, which blocks the growth of any more tumours.

"It's a journey. It keeps on going. Difficulties are opportunities to better things, they are stepping stones to a greater experience. That's what we've all been rallying around."

RESEARCH TARGETS NEW SOLUTIONS

Two studies are looking at how to better target treatments for different sarcoma cancers. Both are partially funded by the Sarcoma Cancer Foundation of Canada.

"It is integral that research in advanced sarcoma pivots around novel targeted therapy," says Dr. Albiruni Razak, medical oncologist at Princess Margaret Cancer Center and Mt. Sinai Hospital in Toronto. "It is also important that we discover which patients benefit from these novel drugs versus otherwise.

"New treatments target tumours in some way to either stop their growth or kill them."

One small pilot study is looking at whether an agent called ENMD-2076 is an effective treatment for sarcoma.

"This novel therapy works by inhibiting blood supply to the tumour so it chokes the tumour and inhibits its growth. This novel drug also has the capacity to halt the cell division process that tumour cells require in order to grow."

In addition, Razak is investigating whether there are biomarkers in patients' tumours that could predict treatment sensitivity or resistance.

A second joint study, also led by Razak, is looking at a rare sarcoma called UPS (undifferentiated pleomorphic sarcoma).

"Researchers are looking at gene sequences on tumours in patients to try to identify abnormalities that can be exploited by matching these aberrances to targeted drug treatments.

"This is an understudied patient population. By looking past the characteristics of tumours observed under the microscope, we hope the gene sequences of the UPS tumours can be used to match patients to targeted treatments."

Synopsis

Combatants and sweethearts Katniss Everdeen (Jennifer Lawrence) and Peeta Mellark (Josh Hutcherson) have returned victorious from the 74th Annual Hunger Games. While on a Victory Tour to Panem's various downtrodden districts, revolution is in the air. The people see Katniss as a symbol of freedom, which, of course, doesn't sit well with President Snow (Donald Sutherland), the country's autocratic leader. To quell the revolution he and his head gamesmaker (Philip Seymour Hoffman) devise the trickiest Hunger Games yet, the Quarter Quell that will pit former winners against one another in the battle to the death.

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Two is better than one

Catching Fire. The followup to the Hunger Games is a step above the first instalment, with more visual and thematic grit

Richard: Mark, I'm glad I saw the first Hunger Games movie because I'm not sure if I would have a clue as to what was going on if I didn't have that background. I may have been taken in by the beautiful art direction, or Jennifer Lawrence's intense performance, but I don't think I would have been able to connect all the dots. Plot points become more obvious in the second hour, but for non-Hungerites it might be confusing. What did you think?

Mark: I don't think anyone who didn't see the first one would even be interested in seeing the second instalment. So the question becomes: how do they compare? And surprisingly, I kind of prefer the sequel. The issues of state control, of media manipulation, and of income disparity are sharper and less cartoonish here. But more important, the secondary characters are more interesting and better drawn. Some of the contestants are intriguing, like Jeffrey Wright's techno-nerd, and his partner Amanda Plummer, doing her nutso thing. I even liked Elizabeth Banks and Stanley Tucci this time around — the characters seemed more grounded in the story.

RC: I do think this is a better movie than the first instalment. It is set decorated and costumed to within an inch of its life, but nonetheless has a gritty edge. It doesn't feel like a budget big franchise movie and that's a good thing. Visually as well as thematically it has more edge than any of the recent Marvel movies. And it skirts around the thing that upset many people about the first movie — the idea of kids killing kids — by setting the action between former victors ranging in age from in their 20s to in their 70s.

MB: You know what else it skirts around? The killings themselves, many of which happen off-screen, to protect the delicate psyches of our tweener population. But that's OK; this isn't really a film about body count. The only thing that left me queasy was the cliffhanger ending, with a plot twist that will seem arbitrary until we catch the next instalment.

RC: The cliffhanger ending is a bit of a shock after the almost two-and-a-half hour running time, but I felt as though enough had happened to keep me interested for the next one.

MB: And I think the next one may show Woody Harrelson to be the trilogy's most valuable player.

Frozen thaws the battle of the sexes

Female perspective. Male and female co-directors ensured Disney film didn't tread into stereotypes

RICHARD CROUSE
scene@metronews.ca

The new animated film Frozen features something unique — dueling Disney princesses.

"I think what was really important for this movie was to have the female perspective," says co-director Chris Buck.

"We have two female leads and there are times that as a male director you can go to the stereotype of what a female character might do."

That's where co-director and writer Jennifer Lee came in. "Jen would always take it to a different place," he says. "She would say, 'Make her real. Make her believable.' So I think that really helped. It was a good balance."

Based on a Danish fairy tale by Hans Christian Andersen, Frozen is the story of two royal sisters, Anna, a spirited adventurer (Kristen Bell) and Elsa, a queen (Idina Menzel) with the awesome power to create ice and snow. Sibling is pitted against sibling when Elsa plunges her kingdom into an endless winter and Anna must act to save her sister and the empire. "You want to make these movies to last forever but we have to bring ourselves to it," says Buck. "We have to bring today's sense of entertainment and character to our characters."

"We're huge Disney fans and I grew up with Disney," says Lee. "When you watch a Disney film you are constantly feeling it. It is a combination of comedy and drama but it is together in such a way that you feel you are in the world. That is something we both love more than anything because that, to me, is what makes them timeless and resonate. You feel the character and you feel the stakes. You relate to them. I think Disney does that better than anyone."

Buck says that one of the big challenges in making Frozen was creating a movie for not "just the Disney family but also for the general audience, for everyone of all ages.

"I feel more than anything, a responsibility not to necessarily the company but to the audience," says Buck. "To the audience who comes in expecting a Disney movie and giving them the best of that. What does that mean to them? It's humour and emotion and beauty and all of that. For me, that's the pressure.

"I was speaking to a live action director who does more movies in the PG-13 and R-rated realm and he said, 'What you guys do is the hardest thing in the world because you try and reach everyone.'"

Comedy

Delivery Man

Director. Ken Scott

Stars. Vince Vaughn, Chris Pratt, Cobie Smulders

Vince Vaughn stars in this almost shot-for-shot remake of the French Canadian film Starbuck as a man-child who learns commitment and responsibility after discovering his sperm bank donations unwittingly made him the father of 533 children, 142 of whom have filed a class action lawsuit to learn their biological father's real identity. Supporting actors Chris Pratt, Cobie Smulders and Bobby Moynihan are all solid, but it's Vaughn who carries the movie. He hands in a charming performance with all the rough edges buffed away in an unabashedly sweet movie. RICHARD CROUSE

Drama

Looking is the Original Sin

Director. Gail Harvey

Stars. Katie Boland, Maria del Mar

If you have issues with your mother, imagine if she was an estranged, singularly-focused artist as well. That's the premise of Gail Harvey's bittersweet exploration of a young woman (Harvey's own daughter Katie Boland) coming to grips with her parent's disaffecting success as an obsessed photographer. With sincere performances, the intimate drama may be exceedingly bleak to many but it remains a heartbreaking and absorbing study of a mother and daughter whose paths are irrevocably divided.
STEVE GOW

Drama

Vic & Flo Saw a Bear

Director. Denis Cote

Stars. Pierrette Robitaille, Rohmane Bohringer

Recently released from prison after serving most of a life sentence, 60-something Vic (Pierrette Robitaille) craves the privacy of isolation; her younger lover Flo (Rohmane Bohringer) is less crazy about the idea of living out in the woods beyond Montreal. The forest proves to be fertile territory for both deadpan comedy and disarming drama, but this time the director has added something new to the mix: The film has the coiled tension of a thriller and brutal late-narrative payoff that's like something out of a horror movie. ADAM NAYMAN

Drama

Empire of Dirt

Director. Peter Stebbings

Stars. Cara Gee, Shay Eyre

Cash strapped and dealing with Peeka, an obstinate 13-year-old who's overdosed on paint fumes, single mother Lena returns to the home she was kicked out of as a teenager. The trip sends both mother and daughter reeling as Lena confronts her past while Peeka is introduced to the family she never knew she had. Hamstrung by a script rife with stilted dialogue and clichés, lead actresses Cara Gee and Shay Eyre do their best. But the film's heart, the troubled relationships between Peeka, Lena and her mother, shine through as each one falls only to be picked up by the other two.
IAN GORMELY

Drama

Nebraska

Director. Alexander Payne

Stars. Bruce Dern, Will Forte

There's erasable and then there's Woody Grant (Bruce Dern), a cantankerous man who thinks a "You may already be a winner" letter is a ticket to a million dollar fortune. After several failed attempts to walk to Lincoln, Neb., to claim his prize Woody's son David (Will Forte) offers to drive him. He knows the ticket is worthless but understands it's the thing that gives Woody something to live for. Director Alexander Payne keeps things nimble and very funny in places in this beautiful black-and-white film.

DiCaprio opens wallet for tigers

Leonardo DiCaprio wants to help the tiger population of Nepal. His Leonardo DiCaprio Foundation has awarded $3 million in grants to the World Wildlife Fund (WWF) to work with the Nepal government on protecting the animals. In a statement Wednesday, the actor and activist said he's "hopeful" the money will help "exceed the goal" of doubling the tiger population that exists in Nepal now. The money will help build up anti-poaching patrols and protect and restore areas for them to breed and expand.

Vitamin C and Lysine Powder Help Prevent Heart Attacks

W. Gifford-Jones, MD

Why is heart attack the # 1 killer in this country? Ninety-nine percent of doctors say it's due to atherosclerosis (the hardening of arteries) and that cholesterol lowering drugs are the primary way to treat it. But I suggest cardiologists have closed minds and are ignoring facts that could save thousands of North Americans from coronary attack.

Years later Dr. Linus Pauling, two-time Noble Prize winner, is ignored for reporting that large amounts of vitamin C and lysine are needed to prevent coronary attacks. Twenty-five years ago Pauling reported that animals make vitamin C and humans do not. That's why sailors died of scurvy during long sea voyages, but the ship's cat survived.

Vitamin C is required to manufacture healthy collagen, the glue that holds coronary cells together, just like mortar is needed for bricks. Lysine, like steel rods in cement, makes collagen stronger. Pauling claimed it takes a mere 10 milligrams to prevent scurvy, but several thousand to prevent heart attack.

Williams Stehbens, Professor of Anatomy at Wellington University in New Zealand, proved Pauling was right. Stebhens' research showed that coronary arteries closest to the heart are under the greatest pressure. This causes collagen to fracture resulting in the formation of a blood clot and death.

Dr. Sydney Bush, an English researcher, has now proved that vitamin C can reverse atherosclerosis. Bush took retinal photographs, then started his patients on high doses of vitamin C and lysine. One year later additional pictures showed atherosclerosis had regressed in retinal arteries.

So what has happened to these monumental findings? Bush, like Semmelweiss, has been ridiculed by cardiologists. One has to ask whether cardiologists, by ignoring his results, are condemning thousands of people to an early coronary heart attack.

Fourteen years ago following my own coronary attack, cardiologists claimed it was sheer madness for me to refuse cholesterol-lowering drugs. Instead, I decided to take high doses of vitamin C plus lysine with breakfast and the evening meal, for several reasons.

I knew that Dr. Graveline, a physician and NASA astronaut, had twice developed transient global amnesia from taking Lipitor. I was also aware that patients have died from CLDs. Others have developed kidney, liver and muscle complications. I also believed the research of Pauling and Stehbens irrefutable. Now, the work of Dr. Bush has convinced me my decision was prudent.

But to take large doses of vitamin C and lysine requires swallowing many pills daily. It's a tall order for those who dislike swallowing one pill. So for several years I've been trying to find a company that would manufacture a combination of vitamin C and lysine powder. Now Medi-C Plus is available at health food stores.

The dosage for the Medi-C Plus combination is one flat scoop with breakfast and the evening meal. Those at greater risk should take one flat scoop three times a day. If high doses cause diarrhea, the dose should be decreased.

This column does not recommend that those taking CLDs should stop them. This is a decision that can only be made by patients and doctors.

Most of today's, cardiologists are impervious to persuasion. They continue to believe that cholesterol-lowering drugs are the be-all-and-end-all to prevent heart attack. They've been brain-washed by millions of dollars worth of promotion by pharmaceutical companies. It reminds me of the saying that cautions "It's not what you don't know what gets you into trouble, it's the things you know for sure that ain't so!"

It's time for cardiologists to have an open mind and stop ignoring this research. As for me – I bet my life on it!

CBC's winter lineup heavy on familiar fare

Television. Schedule includes 1,500 hours of Sochi Games coverage

Yannick Bisson plays Detective William Murdoch on Murdoch Mysteries.
TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE

The CBC's winter lineup is heavy on coverage of the upcoming Winter Games and returning series.

The public broadcaster outlined its upcoming schedule Wednesday, touting mostly familiar fare including Murdoch Mysteries, Dragons' Den, Republic of Doyle, Heartland and The Rick Mercer Report.

It's no surprise the February schedule is dominated by coverage of the Sochi 2014 Olympics, with CBC promising more than 1,500 broadcast hours in both English and French.

New additions to the grid include the political satire The Best Laid Plans, the reality series Four Rooms and the culinary competition Recipe to Riches, which used to air on the Food Network.

In addition to the weekly Saturday night battles on Hockey Night in Canada, CBC will have the 2014 Bridgestone NHL Winter Classic on Jan. 1, back-to-back games from the 2014 Coors Light Stadium Series on Jan. 25 and 26, and the 2014 Tim Hortons Heritage Classic on March 2. Scotiabank Hockey Day in Canada goes live from Lloydminster, Alta./Sask., on Jan. 18.

That's in addition to a partnership with the NHL, NHLPA and NBC to broadcast the seven-part series, NHL Revealed: A Season Like No Other. It starts Jan. 23, a day after it begins south of the border on NBC Sports Network.

The six-part miniseries The Best Laid Plans, based on author Terry Fallis' award-winning novel, focuses on an Ottawa speech writer who decides to leave the Hill for academia, but is tasked with one last impossible job: to find a viable candidate to run against a massively popular incumbent in the next election, and to manage the campaign. It premieres Jan. 5.

Meanwhile, Four Rooms features collectors from across Canada who hope to sell treasured finds they think could be worth a fortune. It debuts Jan. 5. Other returning series include Arctic Air on Jan. 7, The Ron James Show on Feb. 24, and the high school sitcom Mr. D on Feb. 24. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Man on the Silver Mountain/ Extreme

No, not that Extreme. This is the New Zealand band fronted by Ella Yelich-O'Connor — the one we know as Lorde — when she was 12.

Rapping Without the Letter E/ Andrew Huang

In 1939, Eugene Vincent Wright published Gadsby, a 50,000-word novel that didn't use the letter "e" once. Toronto artist Andrew Huang decided to do the same thing when composing this rap.

Wild Horse/ Norazo

What's the next level beyond Psy's horsey dance in Gangnam Style? This South Korean band believes that the answer lies in dressing up as actual horses.

Arcade Fire. No shoes, no shirt, no concert ... unless that's your costume

Arcade Fire may have overstepped their grounds. GETTY IMAGES

Canadian rock band Arcade Fire is getting heat for instituting a dress code for its upcoming North American arena tour.

On the Ticketmaster pages hawking seats for the Montreal group's upcoming tour, a note at the top of the page reads: "Please wear formal attire or costume."

The tour begins March 6 in Louisville and stops in Toronto, Ottawa, Edmonton, Calgary and Winnipeg before wrapping in Montreal on Aug. 30.

The band had made similar sartorial demands before a show in Montreal in September and in London earlier this month, when NME reported that frontman Win Butler told the crowd: "To anyone who felt uncomfortable dressing up — I'm not sorry."

The demand is garnering some backlash, with online cultural magazine Slate writing that the move is "presumptuous" and "an attempt to reinforce the band's status as capital-A Artists."

Time to move on for Two Hours Traffic

Farewell tour.
Charlottetown outfit says break up was enforced due to financial woes

When Charlottetown power-pop outfit Two Hours Traffic recently announced their imminent breakup and farewell tour, the members pledged in a statement that the split had nothing to do with internal dysfunction or creative malaise.

Which left fans wondering why, exactly, they were breaking up then, with the two most obvious reasons ruled out? Well, frontman Liam Corcoran says that despite a decade-plus career that has yielded some success — a Polaris Prize nomination, a devoted following and a horde of East Coast Music Award nominations, including one win — the band's four members still couldn't support themselves financially through music.

"We had been struggling for a while to make a living doing this," Corcoran said recently in a telephone interview. "We'd had the conversation a lot in the last two years of how long can we keep this going without really making a living and coming home, working for $10 an hour?

"Despite the successes we had, it still isn't something we can rely on to pay the bills," he continued. "So we're still coming home and scrambling to get everything else done. There's a lot of honour in that but after 12 years we decided we'd done what we could and it was time to move on."

Indeed, Corcoran and guitarist Andrew MacDonald worked at a local clothing store when they were off tour. Eventually, drummer Derek Ellis decided that he wanted to pursue a master's degree at Western University in London, Ont.

To continue would have likely meant replacing him, which — after the 2011 departure of founding guitarist Alec O'Hanley — would have left Two Hours Traffic with only two original members.

"We started to feel it wasn't the band it used to be and if we continued to play under the name Two Hours Traffic, it'd be kind of dishonest," Corcoran explained. Looking back, Corcoran is intensely proud of the band's output.

After 2005's self-titled debut earned some attention, 2007's Little Jabs brought Two Hours Traffic perhaps their greatest success. The Polaris-nominated disc further established the band's gift for hook-laden power pop, merging the legacy of such acclaimed tunesmiths as Marshall Crenshaw and Nick Lowe with the modern, lean production redolent of the first Strokes album.

That gift for melody never left, not on the slightly moodier 2009 disc Territory or what will likely stand as the group's swan song, 2012's Foolish Blood, a record that found the group exploring more spacious production and a wider palette of sounds. In Corcoran's opinion, it's the band's best work.

His next priority is the band's farewell tour, which will begin Dec. 12 at Toronto's Lee's Palace and ultimately finish with a pair of shows in Charlottetown Dec. 21 and 22.

Clash calling again on a Sound System near you

Q&A. Two of the band's surviving members Mick Jones and Paul Simonon talk about Strummer, the what ifs

Ah, the boom box. The portable stereo brings back memories of a specific time in music, when some of the sounds blaring from the speakers included the stew of punk rock, reggae and early hip-hop cooked up by the Clash.

Bass player Paul Simonon designed the group's new box set to look like a boom box. Lift up the cover and you'll find the complete recorded output of the classic Clash lineup — the late Joe Strummer, Mick Jones, Simonon and Topper Headon — with outtakes, videos, fanzines, stickers, a poster and more. The survivors worked a few years to get back control of their music, remaster it and restore the original artwork.

The Clash were leaders of London's punk rock class of 1977, made one of rock's most enduring albums in London Calling and soaked up the sounds of the street in hits like Train in Vain and Rock the Casbah. Jones and Headon were fired in 1982 and although replacements were added and another album, Cut the Crap, released in 1985, that final chapter is ignored in the Sound System box.

The balding Jones now looks like a kindly British professor as he sits down to talk about the project. Simonon, who always looked better than he played, is impeccably tailored.

They confide a few myth-puncturing details in an interview with The Associated Press earlier this fall: "The Only Band That Matters" declaration was record company hype that they detested, and the band poked fun at their political crusader image in the song Know Your Rights — only people took them too seriously to notice.

Before the Clash, Jones went to art school, not to learn how to draw, but to meet other musicians. He took a grant given to buy art supplies and bought an amp instead. It proved to be a good investment.

Paul Simonon marking the release of SoundSystem inLondon, England. INVISION/AP

Were the Clash destined to burn bright and burn out fast?
Simonon: We didn't know it at the time, but I guess so. When we first started, I was surprised that we got through the end of the week, really.
Jones: Nothing was guaranteed. I knew that we worked really hard, nearly every day.

Is it a regret that you ended when you did?
Simonon: We were starting to lose track with Earth because fame and success brings you many things that you're not really prepared for or know how to deal with as a human being. When it does happen, it's very easy to get swallowed up and be taken along with it and become a casualty or lose touch with reality. The fact that we fell apart when we did, sacking everybody, in some ways stopped those potential problems.

Did you make your peace with Joe Strummer before he died (in 2002)?
Jones: It was well before he died. It was just a few months after I left the group that we became friends again.
Simonon: We appeared in Mick's B.A.D. video for Medicine Show, just to show outwardly that we were friends again.

If he had lived, do you think the Clash would have gotten back together?
Jones: We had opportunities. That's it, really. It didn't happen. It never seemed right.
Why?
Jones: We didn't want to do it.
Simonon: It's a better story at the end of the day that we didn't get back together. We saved all that time and effort by not reforming. It seems like we would have squandered what we'd achieved by reforming. Why do people get together? Why do bands reform? Oh, they're good mates. Well, that's nice. It's usually because of a financial situation that has to be adhered to. Basically, everyone's broke.
Jones: Our band is an idea as well. It kind of said, "You can do this." We can say all this now in retrospect and sort of understand it. When we did it, we just did it instinctively with no thought of future significance.

Does the world need a band like the Clash today?
Jones: There's not much going on, is there? THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PAT HEALY
Metro World News in New York City

This is hilarious. Check out Will Smith trying really, really hard not to put his arm around Margot Robbie in this photo call for their new film Focus in Buenos Aires, Argentina on Wednesday.

It makes sense. After all, the two co-stars were the subject of intense media speculation last month after they reportedly had a steamy romp in a photo booth at a party.

"Once they pulled the curtain back to take the pictures, they let their inhibitions run wild, laughing, hugging and nuzzling each other in the dark," a source told Star.

So now Smith, the professional he is, knows if any other forthcoming gossip about his marriage or his "nuzzling" come to light, media outlets will use any photo they can find of Robbie and him together. Smart man.

Are Harry and Kendall a thing? Don't expect him to deny it

Harry Styles is prompting new dating rumours after being spotted taking Kendall Jenner to dinner in L.A. Wednesday night, according to Us Weekly. Styles drove them to dinner at Craig's restaurant in West Hollywood, Jenner seated beside him in his SUV.

While it's not clear if Styles is actually dating the 18-year-old, he has made his feelings on high-profile relationships known. "I don't want to be one of those people that complains about the rumours," he recently told the British edition of GQ magazine.

"I never like it when a celebrity goes on Twitter and says, 'This isn't true!' It is what it is. The only time it gets really annoying is that if you get into a relationship and you get into a place where you really like someone and then things are being written in the papers that affect them and how they see you. Then it can get annoying."

Add a cheesy side of Canadiana to dinner

Garlic Cheddar Biscuits. This delicious side dish is made with Canadian cheese. Which one? The choice is all yours

For a twist, substitute drained chopped pickled Jalapenos or chives for the green onion.

1. Preheat the oven to 450 F (230 C). Line a large baking sheet with parchment paper.

2. In a large bowl combine the flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, sugar and salt. Using a pastry blender or two knives, cut in butter until crumbly. Stir in cheese and green onions. Slowly add the milk, stirring with a fork, until the batter reaches a soft dough consistency.

3. On a lightly floured surface, knead dough gently 3 to 4 times until it holds together. Roll out to 3/4-inch (2 cm) thickness. Cut into squares. Place at least 2 inches (5 cm) apart on prepared baking sheet.

4. Topping: In a small bowl, combine melted butter and garlic powder; brush biscuits with half of the mixture.

5. Bake 12 mins. or until starting to brown. Brush with remaining butter mix. Bake an additional 3 mins. or until golden brown. Best served warm. MEAGHAN THORNHILL OF HARBOURFRONT HOLSTEINS & JEZEBEL JERSEYS IN ANTIGONISH, N.S./ DAIRY FARMERS OF CANADA (MILKCALENDAR.CA)

Even with most wine aficionados plugging into the Internet for the bulk of their liquid knowledge, there's still a place in this world for some hard copy.

Just in time for Christmas, the newly released Canadian Wineries (Firefly Books, $29.95) by Tony Aspler, with photographs by Jean-François Bergeron, is the book Canadian wine fans have been waiting for.

Focusing on more than 60 wineries — from British Columbia's Mission Hill all the way to Nova Scotia's Jost Vineyards — it's a lovingly crafted collection of stories and images that will make even the most jaded sommelier excited to visit these vineyards and drink their wines.

B.C.'s Sandhill Estate is included in the collection and its 2011 Cabernet Merlot ($17.49 to $21.99) is available just about everywhere. Dark, rich and layered with varietal fruit, it's a mouthful of local juice that pairs perfectly with meatier, winter-inspired menus.

Tell me the story of Everest," she said, a fervent smile sweeping across her face, creasing the corners of her eyes. "Tell me about this mountain that's stealing you away from me."
George and Ruth sat on the drawing room floor, laughing and tipsy, dinner growing cold on the table in the next room. Ruth was cross-legged opposite him, her gray skirt pulled tight across her knees. She picked up the single sheet of thick ivory paper from her lap and reread the invitation from the newly formed Mount Everest Committee again. "My husband, the world-famous explorer." Ruth held up her glass of wine and he reached out with his own, the crystal ringing in the lamplit room. She was fairly bursting with happiness.

Don’t let the eggnog derail your career path

Office holiday parties. Be on your best behaviour when you gather with co-workers

JANE DOUCET
For Metro

It’s wise to keep your inhibitions in check at the annual holiday party if you want to keep your career on the fast track. PRESSMASTER/SHUTTERSTOCK

Ah, the annual office holiday party. Perhaps people have been on their best behaviour at the parties you have attended, but things can go south quickly, especially if alcohol flows freely.

If that happens this year — if you want to keep your career on the fast track — it’s wise to keep your inhibitions in check.

“Employers are responsible for the safety of their employees, even at an office party, and they have a legal obligation to take appropriate disciplinary action against anyone who goes overboard in terms of sexual harassment, insubordination or discrimination,” said Susan Thompson-Graham, the head instructor of the advanced diploma program in human resource management at the Nova Scotia Community College in Halifax.

Here are Thompson-Graham’s tips for how to not ruin your career at the party:

• Don’t skip the shindig. You may not want to go, but it’s one night of the whole year, and if you don’t attend, you could be ostracized at work for a while.

• Drink responsibly. Let management set the pace for how much alcohol is consumed. If everyone overindulges, ensure that you also consume vast quantities of water and food. “You don’t want to be the office hangover joke the next day,” Thompson-Graham said. “And do I even need to say it? No illegal drugs.”

• Dress appropriately. “It’s not Halloween, so no sexy pirate, sexy nurse or sexy devil outfits,” Thompson-Graham said.

• Keep romance at bay. Although many people do meet their significant other at work, don’t make out on the dance floor under the glare of the disco ball. “Instead, make arrangements for a rendezvous after the party,” Thompson-Graham said.

• Observe social media etiquette. That means no texting — you need to look like you want to be there. And no posting “memorable moments” from the party on Facebook or Instagram, especially if your company has a social media policy.

• Express your gratitude. Thank the host and organizers for their hard work. “I often hear managers say, ‘I do this for my employees and don’t get a single thank you.’ Be remembered for being the one who took the time to do so,” Thompson-Graham said.

Welker returns to Broncos practice

Wes Welker returned to practice Thursday for the first time since leaving Sunday's game against Kansas City with a concussion.

Welker, who passed his baseline concussion test earlier in the week, wasn't allowed any contact work. He'll get to do that Friday if all goes well.

He said he's hopeful he'll be able to play against his former team, the New England Patriots, on Sunday night.

Amnesia ails Leafs in loss to Predators

NHL. Lessons from October trip to Tennessee largely forgotten in rematch

On Thursday

4	2
Predators	Maple Leafs

Randy Carlyle didn't think his Toronto Maple Leafs could take much from their October win over the Predators in Nashville.

It was so long ago it might as well have been ancient history. That was evident Thursday night when so much that went right for the Leafs last time around failed them in a 4-2 loss to the Predators at Air Canada Centre.

After jumping out to a lead, the Leafs abandoned much of what made them 8-2-0 at home going in. Defence in their own zone was spotty, and that, coupled with penalties, proved to be their undoing.

Craig Smith scored twice for the Predators, while rookie defenceman Seth Jones and Matt Cullen each had a goal. That overshadowed Peter Holland's first goal with the Leafs since being acquired from the Anaheim Ducks.

Toronto goaltender Jonathan Bernier, who shut out the Predators last month and has dominated them during his NHL career, made 24 saves on 28 shots but didn't allow a soft goal until the third period when the game had all but slipped away. Nashville rookie Marek Mazanec made 24 saves for the victory.

Carlyle said Thursday morning that so much hockey had been played since the Leafs and Predators met Oct. 10. In the present, his focus was to "cure some of the ailments that have been present."

That didn't go so well. Again the Leafs were outshot — 28-26 after starting the game up 11-5 — and they couldn't put together much sustained attack time or opportunistic offence after Holland scored 5:48 in with a perfect shot over Mazanec's left shoulder.

Nazem Kadri scored the other Leafs goal with under five minutes to play in the third period to make it 4-2.

Two shades of Grey unite on Sunday

Saskatchewan Roughriders fans celebrate winning the CFL West final over the Stampeders in Calgary on Nov. 17. Sunday's Grey Cup will mark only the third time Regina has hosted the event. LARRY MACDOUGAL/THE CANADIAN PRESS

DAVE LANGFORD

Red, white and Grey

The pro-CFL and pro-NFL camps co-exist on Grey Cup Sunday for obvious reasons — both love football, both love Canada and there is nothing more Canadian than the Grey Cup.

When it comes to professional football in this country, there really are only two shades of grey.

As in Grey Cup.

First, the segment of our population with the absolute love of the Canadian game at all levels. For them, the CFL is almost a way of life and these people dominate in three provinces — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta — and exist in various regional pockets across the rest of our country.

This group loves three-down football, all things Canadian, movement in the backfield and someone actually gaining points when they miss 30-yard field goals.

The second group is not as obvious, but every bit as strong in their beliefs about the way football should be played. They are NFL fans and they are all across the country, dominating in some provinces and no worse than 50 per cent of the football enthusiasts in many others.

Four-down football is their cup of Red Rose tea and betting on the game is part of their persona. They like the fact the best athletes are playing their game and relish the absolute television and online saturation, allowing them many more entry points.

But there is one day when both sides unite and become one — a special Sunday each year in late November. The confluence of the two streams on Grey Cup Sunday is a beautiful thing.

And this year more than the rest.

That is because the two smallest markets — Hamilton, represented by the Ticats, and Regina, by the Roughriders — are facing each other for the first time since 1989. And the game is in Regina, only the third time the city has played host to the event.

The pro-CFL and pro-NFL camps co-exist on Grey Cup Sunday for obvious reasons — both love football, both love Canada and there is nothing more Canadian than the Grey Cup.

But a Grey Cup in Regina is not the Grey Cup in the Rogers Centre in Toronto or the Olympic Stadium in Montreal or BC Place in Vancouver.

It is far superior, something very special.

It is an outdoor spectacle played in Canada's version of the "frozen tundra" where the elements will be in play all day and the fans would not have it any other way.

No matter how many downs are in play.

Who is Peter Dyakowski? Hamilton lineman hopes to be a Grey Cup champ when he appears on Jeopardy

Hamilton offensive lineman Peter Dyakowski has already been crowned Canada's Smartest Person. And now the six-foot-five 325-pounder with a Mensa IQ has earned an invitation to appear on Jeopardy.

But the thing he really wants to win is Sunday's Grey Cup.

"Once I get that under my belt, then I'm going to put myself through a good trivia boot camp," the 29-year-old Dyakowski said.

Dyakowski won CBC TV's Canada's Smartest Person show in March 2012. Contestants went head-to-head in six categories of intelligence: musical, physical, social, logical, visual and linguistic.

So is Dyakowski, a seven-year CFL vet who attended LSU on a football scholarship, really Canada's smartest person?

"He doesn't act that smart," Ticat linebacker Frederic Plesius said with a laugh. "In the bus, he likes to scream, make some noises to piss everybody off on purpose.

"But he's a cool guy. He's a leader, he's a good guy and he's an example for the team."

Dyakowski, a native of Vancouver who now calls Hamilton home, took an online Jeopardy test in January. He was invited to a July audition in Toronto.

A couple of weeks ago, he got the call that he had made the cut and will appear on the show in April.

Strengths and weaknesses

So does Peter Dyakowski have any weak areas in Jeopardy? Contemporary interior decorators, he offers. Female authors of the 1970s.

- "I'm hoping for some categories like CFL history," he said. "Tim Hortons' pastries and British Columbia geography."

Rob Bagg. Receiver has another shot at glory

For a moment, it looked like Rob Bagg's dream of winning the CFL's biggest prize was finally over.

In an Aug. 17 game against the Montreal Alouettes, the Saskatchewan Roughriders wide receiver went out on a blocking assignment and went down in a heap, clutching his left knee.

Bagg left the field in tears, seeming to signal the end of a CFL career that barely managed to get started.

But two days later video emerged of Bagg running the stairs at Mosaic Stadium, and not even two weeks after that he was back in the lineup for the Labour Day Classic, making one catch for seven yards as the Riders downed the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Bagg finished the 2013 regular season fifth on the Riders with 430 yards receiving, and will have the chance Sunday to help his team finish first when Saskatchewan hosts the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the 101st Grey Cup at Mosaic Stadium.

"Getting back on the field is one thing but, really, your main driving factor is you want to be able to tell your kids and grandkids that you were the best in the CFL one year," he said.

Roughriders wide receiver Rob Bagg JEFF MCINTOSH/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bagg will be in uniform Sunday for his first championship game since 2009, when Saskatchewan lost to Montreal after a too-many-men penalty cost them the game with no time on the clock.

His first shot at redemption was derailed late in the 2010 season when he tore the ACL in his right knee, causing him to miss the Riders' playoff drive and loss in the Grey Cup rematch with Montreal.

Bagg missed all of 2011 after reinjuring the ligament prior to the next season's training camp and played only three games in 2012 before tearing up his other knee, which also required season-ending surgery. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Financial stability

Future looks bright for Tiger-Cats

With a new stadium taking shape and a successful run to the CFL championship game, Hamilton owner Bob Young says the future looks good for the Ticats.

"With a new stadium, a new television contract, a great web presence that we're building on and, of course, a winning football team, the Tiger-Cats will be financially stable for the first time in 42 years — next year, going into the new stadium," Young said Thursday.

"Winning the Grey Cup won't hurt at all," he added with a smile.

Young, a native of Ancaster, Ont., rescued the Ticats from bankruptcy in 2003. He is quick to deflect credit for his role in the team, however.

"The joke I make is my role with the organization is to take credit for all the hard work that everyone else actually does," he said with a laugh. "This is all just evidence that all the hard work that we've put in for the last 10 years actually is paying off and is resulting in the level of excellence that you have to have to get to the Grey Cup."

Green gifts. Riders have perch all their own when it comes to merchandise

Long underwear in green, rubber ducks with tiny green football helmets painted on them and a foam helmet that looks like a watermelon.

There is apparently no end to the list of things bearing a Saskatchewan Roughriders logo, and football fans flocking to Regina for the 101st Grey Cup on Sunday can't wait to get their hands on the merchandise.

Riders vice-president of sales Steve Mazurak says Saskatchewan sells as much merchandise as all the other CFL teams combined.

The Riders have had more than $7 million in merchandise sales in each of the last four years, with sales in the 2010 centennial year reaching $10 million.

But Mazurak says it's too early to know if sales this year will pass that $10 million mark, adding that might depend on the outcome of the game Sunday.
